

Heart Lines: Your Hands Relationship and Emotional Needs Factor

How Compatible Are You?

Do you know that your hands reveal compatibility strengths and challenges? Specifically, your heart lines identify actual behaviors and motivations for how you want to be treated in relationships, how you communicate and what is true for your partner's communication needs. Providing an easy way to gain understanding of yourself and others without knowing much else about the hands, heart lines reflect your non-negotiable relationship needs.

Heart Lines Types

Your entire body is your individual soul map, which is why no two people look exactly the same. Your hands are a microcosm of your body also making them a soul map. There are four types of heart lines:

- Passionate
- Big Heart
- Romantic Idealist
- Hermit

Each type is a unique perspective about how you want to express feelings, express love and how you want to have love shown to you.

People in your life may have a different heart line type than you do, thus they have different perspectives, needs and desires about relationships.

You may have the same heart line type on both hands. Or you may have a different heart line on your left hand than on your right. For some, one of your hands may contain two or three heart lines. Occasionally both hands contain multiple heart lines.

The Heart Line Owner

Whichever heart line(s) you have, it is your responsibility to get your needs met. It is not your partner's job, your parent's responsibility nor your children's obligation. Here are some examples.

If you have a Big Heart you seek deep connection. It is up to you to find people with whom you can have that experience. Your husband may not have a Big Heart and thus the need for connection isn't as important for him.

If you have a Romantic Idealist, you seek deep meaningful conversations. Again, maybe your partner has a different heart line type and doesn't find deep meaning conversions important. But you still need to create that with others.

If your heart line types are Hermits, you need time alone everyday to renew. If your partner has a more social type heart line, then he or she may not understand why you need so much quiet time and it could cause friction in the relationship.

If Passionates are your heart line types, you want what you want and you want it now. Your partner may have more conservative heart line types and feels guilty about asking for what he or she wants.

How do you address these similarities and differences? This can be done in a personal and couples' hand analysis or by reading my book: Your Heart is in Your Hands.

Click here to obtain your personal copy of the entire book on heart lines titled Your Heart is In Your Hands. By looking at the diagrams you can determine your own heart line types and those of loved ones in your life. And you look at hands of close friends and loved ones, assisting all of you in understanding what motivates you specifically in your relationships.